

On Meeting in Private Homes

Note from an attender to others in Great Falls Worship Group in Montana,

I know I was reluctant to attend my first Quaker Meeting because it wasn't in a facility. Now that I've attended meetings I understand better "how it works," but for a newbie with a blind curiosity about Quaker worship, I did find it "off putting" to go to someone's house. If it hadn't been for Donna Williams I still would be an "outsider" wondering about Quakers. Now that I understand, I'd have no difficulty showing up to a home in any city, but I have to wonder how many more people like me are there out there that have an interest in attending a service but don't because it's in a private home? I think if we could get a permanent stationary facility, and use that address in our advertising (phonebook, web, newspaper, etc.), that might help.
